

A snapshot of who's doing what in the industry

Where's Jean?

If you're looking for one of the Coast's most established property agents, Jean Hamer, and you've ventured to her office along Brisbane Road only to find she's not there, it's because she's moved! Jean and her team have relocated to work in association with the My Mooloolaba property sales and rentals team at Shop 21, 121 Mooloolaba. Jean will be operating independently under the Jean Hamer Prime Properties brand, but will be working from the same premises, and alongside the team at My Mooloolaba. Jean says the fit was ideal, as she was looking to shift from owning and running her own agency to re-focus on sales. "It's a really good mix and a really good synergy in the My Mooloolaba office. It's basically an alignment of two like-minded companies so it's a great amalgam of businesses. The response from people has been terrific. The property management division has been transferred here as well. We are really running as two separate companies but we work in association under the one roof. It's working really well."

A Lifestyle choice

The new Ray White Lifestyle office officially opened its doors last week and the occasion was marked with a soiree at the new premises on Nicklin Way in Kawana. Owners Sam Archer and Ben Wilson introduced the new sales and administration team to a number of industry professionals and special guests. Australian poet Rupert McCall – who was one of the event's special guests – kicked off the speeches with a colourful series of monologues and poetic genius. Ray White chair Brian White also attended the opening and in his speech, congratulated Sam and Ben on taking the franchise to an innovative new level.

Strength in numbers

RE/MAX Property Associates recently held its 'New Directions' corporate event at The Sanctuary Venue in Tanawha. In attendance were agents, property management and administration staff from the group's five office locations numbering around 100 strong. The
